CHINESE FACE GRAVE THREAT FROM YOYANG

MONSOON CRIPPLES ALLIED GAINS IN NORTH BURMA

Associated Press War Editor
Embattled China, fighting desperately on widely separated war fronts, faced another grave threat yesterday (Monday) as the Japanese invaders fanned out in their new many-pronged Hunan offensive.

The Japanese continued to advance on their objectives in what appeared to be a drive to capture the entire Canton-Hankow railway and thus strengthen themselves against possible American landings along the China coast.

Rice Bowl Menaced
On the southwest wing of the vast Asiatic war theater Allied forces improved their positions on bloody Myitkyina battlefields in northern Burma. But they suffered reverses to the west of the main Japanese base as heavy monsoon rains crippled an aerial supply line to the Mogaung valley.

Chinese field dispatches said the Japanese started a new southward drive from Yoyang (Yochow) that was threatening Siang-sha, 30 miles northwest of the Canton-Hankow railway. The main body of invaders pushed another seven miles toward Changsha, import railway city. Siang-sha is 30 miles north of Changsha while the railway line is about 425 miles inland from the China coast.

Other prongs of the Japanese offensive thrust westward toward central China's rich rice bowl and eastward into southern Hunan province. One prong reached southward from Yoyang into southern Hunan while another pressed westward toward Kunming, 75 miles from Yoyang.

Yangtze Crossed
Thirty miles north-northeast of Kunming the Japanese crossed the Yangtze river in a sudden thrust near Shasi.

Some 400 miles to the north of Hunan, counter-attacking Chinese reported recapture of Lushan, in Honan province.

The Japanese already held part of the north-south railway as a result of the Hunan fighting. In Burma the Allied northern commander, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, flew to Myitkyina and directed his American and Chinese troops as they cut in from the southeast, stormed a Japanese position and advanced to within about a half mile of the town's railway station. Other American and Chinese forces pushed forward inside the town, severing one Japanese avenue of retreat.

The Japanese suffered heavy losses in thrusts from west of Myitkyina.

Pacific Isles Hammered
Airborne British chindit troops near Mogaung, 35 miles west of Myitkyina, were hit by reinforced Japanese units from the south. Their ammunition exhausted and their air supply line disrupted by bad weather, the Chindits were forced to give ground before heavy attacks. The invaders took a vital airstrip and eliminated important road blocks, one of which had cut the Mandalay-Myitkyina railway. The Japanese attack was intended to relieve their hard-pressed 18th (Singapore) division, which is being pushed back by Chinese forces coming down the Mogaung valley.

In the central Pacific American aircraft continued to hammer Japanese island positions in the Carolines and the Marshalls.

Labor Unrest Continues In Detroit Area

Detroit, May 29. (AP)—After virtually a solid month of major labor disputes, Detroit saw the end of one strike today only to have another bob up to take its place in a set of three.

A walkout of a reported 1,500 men closed the main plant of the Federal Mogul company, halting production of engine bearings.

A thousand AFL bakery truck drivers extended their strike into a fifth day, ignoring a War Labor board (WLB) request to resume work today, and drug workers at Parke, Davis & Co. completed a week of idleness.

All told, approximately 4,400 men and women were off the job. Off and on, in the course of a month, an estimated 70,000 persons have experienced idleness because of labor disputes. The Detroit area's employed population is set at 1,200,000.

Except for some absentees who presumably took an extended Memorial Day holiday, a fullshift was back at work at the Chrysler Highland Park plant which a rebellion of dissatisfied UAW-CIO members had closed Friday night.

SMOKER REINSTATED
Saginaw, Mich., May 29. (AP)—Chevrolet transmission plant officials agreed here today to reinstate only one of 11 employees dismissed last week for smoking while at work in the company's No. 2 forge plant.

The decision grew from a conference of management and UAW-CIO representatives on the subject of the union's request for reinstatement of the ousted employees and the question of smoking in the forge plant.

Repeated violations of the shop rule against smoking brought dismissal of the group last Thursday. The company's action resulted in a sympathy strike Friday, closing the Chevrolet divisions—three plants here and throwing 2,800 employees out of work.

Members of the involved UAW-CIO Local 467 voted Sunday to end the strike and Monday were back at their jobs to permit operation of both day and night shifts in Chevrolet's two forge plants here.

DEWEY ALMOST SAYS HE'LL RUN

Potential Presidential Candidate Smoked Out By G. I. Joe

Hershey, Pa., May 29. (AP)—Where big and little men in civies had failed for months, a boy in G. I. uniform smoked out of Governor Thomas E. Dewey the closest thing to an admission that he may run for president.

"I guess I don't have any control over that," Dewey told the soldier who shot this question at him—"Are you going to run for president in 1944 or 1948?"

The soldier didn't pop the question spontaneously, however. He had his prompts in veteran newspapermen who hurried to New York state's contingent at the Indianapolis Gap military reservation before Dewey arrived in a jeep.

The reporters tried unsuccessfully for some time to enlist a volunteer for the job. Finally one of them agreed to do the job if his name was withheld.

The governor arrived, shook hands, signed autographs and joked with the boys from his home state for almost a half-hour. Just as he was about to leave, the soldier spoke up:

"Governor, these plain clothes gentlemen back of me want to know are you going to run for president in 1944 or 1948?"

Dewey, who was giving an autograph, at the time, paused and said, "After all, I guess I don't have any control over that."

The soldier told the thankless reporters he was from New Rochelle, N. Y., but wouldn't identify himself further.

Designer Collects For Four Husbands In Armed Forces

Detroit, May 29. (AP)—Mrs. Marion Horn, 35-year-old dress designer, charged with illegally obtaining government dependency allowances from four husbands in the armed services, was held in bond of $4,000 today for examination on June 6.

Mrs. Horn was arraigned last Friday on charges of accepting $1,500 in allotments on behalf of three husbands. She pleaded innocent and her bail was set at $1,000. Arraigned today on a fourth count, she entered another plea of innocent and U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd increased the bond. The fourth count charged she had accepted $100 illegally.

SCHOOL MUSIC BAN CONDEMNED

Vandenberg's Bill Aimed At James Petrillo; Action Promised

Washington, May 29. (AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) appealed to congress today to "release the music of school children from the domination of Mr. James C. Petrillo," and he may get some action Thursday.

He introduced a bill aimed at preventing Petrillo and his A. F. of L. musicians union from interfering with noncommercial cultural or educational broadcasts by schools. The measure went to the senate interstate commerce committee, which is considering a series of amendments to the federal communications act.

Along with legislation to ban commercial sponsoring of news broadcasts and news commentaries, Vandenberg's proposal may come up for study when the committee assembles Thursday.

"If we are going to rewrite the radio law," the senator told a reporter, "We want this in. It is one notorious phase of the radio situation that will have to be considered if any revision of the radio code is to be adequate."

Through his demands for the use of high school bands, Petrillo has taken high school bands and orchestras off the air, Vandenberg declared. He cited as an example orchestras and bands of high school students assembled from all over the country each year at Interlochen, Mich., for two months training under expert directors.

"This has been looked on," he said, "as about the finest type of high school musical culture and for years it was on National radio hookups. But Petrillo took it off the air two years ago and kept it off."

Ford Glider Plant At Iron Mountain Gets Army-Navy 'E'

Washington, May 29. (AP)—The army announced today the army-navy production award has been granted to 25 companies.

Among them were: Ford Motor Co., Ford glider plant, Iron Mountain, Mich., and General Motors Corp., Detroit, Mich.

The reporters tried unsuccessfully for some time to enlist a volunteer for the job. Finally one of them agreed to do the job if his name was withheld.

HEMANS AGAIN IS LINKED TO BRIBERY CASE

WITNESS DESCRIBES VOTE BUYING AT LANSING

Lansing, May 29. (AP)—The name of Major Charles F. Hemans, whose testimony of graft pay-offs to legislators caused sensations in a prior legislative graft warrant hearing, was injected today into examination of 13 defendants named in another grand jury warrant accusing them of conspiracy to corrupt the Michigan legislature.

Hemans' name was spotlighted by Ernest J. Prew, vice president of the General Finance Corporation of Detroit, who testified that he and three defendants involved in the hearing attended a meeting at which Hemans was hired by them to look after "legislative matters" including "buying votes."

No Immunity Promised
Prew, who is awaiting sentence on his plea of guilty to the first conspiracy warrant, said in cross-examination he had not been promised immunity from other prosecution.

The warrant on which the 13 are being examined charged they conspired to distort the original intent of a bill adopted in 1939 imposing a tax on intangible properties such as stocks, bonds and other securities.

The examination was recessed to Wednesday, Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler and Circuit Judge Leonard W. Carr declaring they hoped to complete it that day, as a result of a shortcut through which certain identification testimony of the first examination was admitted as evidence in this one.

Judge Carr, whose one-man grand jury returned the warrant against the 13, overruled a defense motion to dismiss the charge. P. J. M. Halley, of the defense attorney staff, contended the warrant was defective in that it made accusations both of giving and receiving bribes, and that one warrant could not legally encompass the two. Judge Carr replied that the accusation was corruption of the legislature, and that the alleged bribe passing episodes were only elements of the crime charges.

Extradition Resisted
A 14th defendant, Armand E. Robichaud, of Newark, N. J., public relations counsel of the Beneficial Management Corporation, is resisting extradition and the hearing proceeded without him. The

The Roving Reporter

By ERNIE PYLE

LONDON, (by wireless)—The top commanders who have toiled and slaved for months planning the second front have been under a man-killing strain of work and responsibility.

Thousands of men of high rank have labored and less. They are up early, they work all day, and after supper they go back to work far into the night. Seldom can you get one of them to take a day off.

Among the greatly conscientious ones in this category is Lieut. Gen. Omar Bradley, who will lead the American troops in the second front.

The other day I ran into Sgt. Alex Stout from Louisiana, who has been General Bradley's driver for several years. The General is very fond of Alex, and in turn Alex is not afraid to look at his king or to plot in his behalf.

Alex keeps saying: "General, you're working too hard. If you won't take a day off, why don't you get in the car and we'll just drive around the country for a couple of hours?"

He was persistent. One day he put it to his boss again and the General said, well, as soon as he filled two more appointments he would go out for a half-hour ride. So Alex got him in the car and headed for the country.

"We drove for two hours," Alex says. "I told him I was lost and couldn't find my way back to town. But I knew where I was all the time, all right."

Soviets Strike In Romania To Soften Enemy

BY RUSSELL LANDSTROM
London, Tuesday, May 30. (AP)—Softening up enemy air strength in Romania, the Red air force struck airdromes near Roman and Husi yesterday and destroyed or disabled at least 60 planes, a Soviet communique announced last night.

Roman is on the Siret river and Husi on the Prut. Both are between the Carpathian Mountains and the Dniester river.

The Russian communique, recorded by the Soviet Monitor from a Moscow broadcast, said all the Soviet planes returned safely.

At the airdromes, said the Soviets, "After silencing anti-aircraft fire our planes carried out several bombing and machine-gun attacks," destroying or damaging no fewer than 60 enemy craft.

Both the Russian and German communiques said there was little activity on the ground. The Soviets said 35 enemy planes had been shot down in air combat or by anti-aircraft fire Sunday. The Nazis claimed successful air attacks on Soviet supplies and rail stations in the areas of Sheptovka and Korosten.

The Nazis continued probing the northern end of the White Russian front, where a Moscow dispatch said enemy reconnaissance thrusts were repulsed.

In a later supplement the Russians reported that the Germans bombed Russian troop positions on two sectors of the front—losing five fighters and three bombers over the Gulf of Finland, and five more planes in another sector.

SECURITY BODY TALKS PROCEED

Hull Ready To Go On With Britain, China And Russia

Washington, May 29. (AP)—Secretary of State Hull announced tonight that he is ready to proceed with discussions with Great Britain, Russia and China on the organization of an international security body.

The "first phase" of his talks with the senate postwar advisory committee on foreign policy has been concluded, the secretary said in a statement, and it is this fact which brings him up to the point of undertaking talks on a four-power basis. Hull's statement said, in part:

"The first phase of the informal conversations with the eight senators has been concluded.

"We had frank and fruitful discussions on the general principles, questions and plans relating to the establishment of an international peace and security organization in accordance with the Moscow four-nation declaration, the Connally resolution and other similar declarations made in this country.

"I am definitely encouraged and am ready to proceed, with the approval of the president, with informal discussions on this subject with Great Britain, Russia and China and then with governments of other united nations."

Open Court Martial Asked By Kimmel In Pearl Harbor Story

Washington, May 29. (AP)—Declaring the "whole story of Pearl Harbor" has not been told, Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel has demanded a "free, open and public" court martial "at the earliest practicable date." It was disclosed today.

Kimmel's demand was made in a letter released by Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) as the senate judiciary committee voted to act next Monday on Ferguson's resolution fixing Sept. 8 as the deadline for the trial's start.

The house rules committee meanwhile approved legislation "directing" that Kimmel, Major General Walter C. Short and any others charged with responsibility for this nation's greatest military disaster be held before June 7, 1945.

HITLER'S SKY POWER DEALT TELLING BLOW

U. S. FLIERS BAG 100 NAZI PLANES, RIP UP FACTORIES

BY W. W. HERCHER
London, Tuesday, May 30. (AP)—American heavy bombers and fighters, possibly 2,200 strong, shot 100 enemy aircraft from the sky and hammered seven aircraft factories in Poland and Germany and a synthetic oil works near Stettin yesterday.

The blow was the heaviest dealt in a day of perfect weather which saw approximately 6,500 sorties flown from Allied pre-invasion bases in Britain and Italy.

It cost the U. S. strategic air force 35 bombers and 11 fighters, the same losses as reported after yesterday's operations in similar strength when 93 Nazi planes were knocked down.

Raiders Over Alps
One Marauder was lost as the Ninth Air Force kept pace with the heavies by sending a record number of 400 twin-engine bombers and Havocs against French and Belgian bridges and a French air field.

While British-based Liberators and Fortresses were winging across northern Europe, between 500 and 700 heavies from Italy, with matching escort headed into old Austria and bombed a German aircraft factory at Atzgersdorf, a few miles southwest of Vienna, the Wollersdorf ferry plane base and the Nord airfield, both near Wienerneustadt.

All these targets were visited five days ago when the last big strike over the Alps was made, simultaneously with British-initiated raids on Berlin and Paris. Once again the big bombers ran into intense flak and determined enemy fighter opposition. The losses of the Mediterranean raiders were not immediately announced.

Huge Escort Used
The climax of a day, in which Allied raiders scourged the face of Europe from Polish factories to possible battlefields in western Europe and present front lines in Italy, was struck by the 1,000 American heavy bombers which, for the second day in a row had an escort of more than 1,200 Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs furnished by the Eighth and Ninth Air Forces.

They swept about 750 miles across Germany, bombing aircraft plants at Poznan, Poland; Krasnik (Krasnik), five miles to the southeast, the eastern and southern German cities of Leipzig, Tutzing, Soran and Cottbus, and the Polish synthetic oil plant, 85 miles northeast of Berlin.

"When we were over the Baltic Sea 150 miles from the target we could still see black smoke rolling up from it to a height of 20,000 feet," said a bomber crew member giving evidence of the weight of the attack.

The heavy bomber task forces were in strength the equal of yesterday's big American air force, which concentrated on Germany's synthetic oil industry.

McNulty sought release on bail on the ground he shot Modaff in self-defense last Wednesday after the tavern owner struck him on the head with a baseball bat.

His wife, Mrs. Jean Abraham McNulty, told the court they were married in December, 1942, and that she left him the following July to live in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Judge Daly continued the hearing to June 9. An inquest into the slaying will be held June 7.

ENGLAND'S WHIT MONDAY SERENE

Germany Jittery About Invasion; Troops Eager And Fit

London, May 29. (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, inspecting invasion-prime Canadian troops threatening to avenge Dieppe, praised their battle fitness. It was disclosed today as civilian England, in a holiday interlude, observed a sunny and serene Whit Monday.

Across the channel, a Nazi radio commentator declared "Germany would prefer for the invasion to come today rather than tomorrow," and said the Allies already had let pass a favorable invasion date when weather tides were perfect.

The German outgivings indicated the Berlin high command might have primed its defenses for the expected blow, only to suffer a letdown when the date passed with nothing beyond the aerial bleeding.

"There can be no doubt," said the Germany agency DNB, "that the original date for invasion has passed, but there are so many symptoms and speculations in connection with the next date that Germany cannot possibly be taken by surprise."

WEDGE DRIVEN IN LAST DITCH DEFENSE LINE

FIFTH ARMY TROOPS PUSH ON TOWARD ETERNAL CITY

BY NOLAN NORGAARD
Allied Headquarters, Naples, May 29. (AP)—The battle for Rome—first great capital of Nazi-dominated Europe to fall within range of Allied guns—raged with mounting fury tonight after an Allied wedge had been driven deeply into the enemy's "last ditch" defense line less than 16 miles from the Eternal City.

In a desperate effort to hold Rome at least until his battered forces far to the southeast could disengage and be withdrawn to the new line, Field Marshal Albert Kesselring poured reinforcements into a savage series of counterattacks along a 17-mile front from the vicinity of Valmontone on the Via Cassilina to Campoleone at the edge of the Alban Hills.

Infantry Keeps Going
These heavy counterblows slowed but did not halt the advance of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's British and American Fifth army troops, who doggedly pressed their attack in the face of flamethrowers and withering artillery and small arms fire.

Daniel De Luca of the Associated Press reported in a top dispatch filed at 6:30 p. m. that American tanks were attacking German strongpoints of armor, artillery and infantry on the slopes of the Alban Hills between Campoleone and Lanuvio at a point less than 16 miles southeast of Rome's outskirts.

He said enemy counterattacks employing as much as a battalion of infantry and four 60-ton Tiger tanks at a crack were beaten back and that tank-led Allied infantry had made progress all day.

Three Divisions Gone
Allied headquarters announced that three of 13 German divisions engaged in the battle had been virtually destroyed since the Allied offensive began May 11, with more than 15,000 in prison camps. Combat strength of enemy divisions now was estimated at 8,000 men.

American and British beachhead forces launched a powerful new drive toward Campoleone—almost due south of Rome—yesterday, and by last night were within a mile of the German stronghold. Other Allied troops smashed through Aprilia, the model farm community which changed hands four times in the extradition warrant is being prepared now in the governor's office, presumably to be issued Wednesday.

The program will start at 8:30 this morning at St. Joseph's cemetery.

HEMANS AGAIN IS LINKED TO BRIBERY CASE

Prew testified that he and defendants Abraham Cooper, president of the Union Investment company of Detroit, John E. Hancock, Detroit branch manager of the Associates Discount Corporation, and George Omacht of South Bend, Ind., general counsel of Associates Discount, attended the now celebrated Jan. 26, 1939, meeting in Detroit at which Hemans had testified he was employed as a lobbyist.

Prew declared over defense objections that Hemans had worked for the same group before and had reported to them that "the boys come around on pay day."

He testified that Hemans was designed to represent them in the legislature again, and that he (Prew) personally understood from the conversation that "buying votes" of legislators would be part of Hemans' job. He said "looking after" the intangible tax bill was among Hemans' assignments, because as originally introduced the bill "would have multiplied several times the tax we would have paid."

Prew testified the bill was amended to place a "ceiling" on the amount of tax collectible on securities, and that small loan and finance companies were allowed deductions for "bills payable" on their books. As it was finally adopted, he asserted, it was "amended favorably to our companies."

Other defendants are Julian Thompson, lobbyist for the Michigan Association of Small Loan Companies and the Household Finance Corporation of Chicago; State Senators Charles C. Diggs and Leo J. Wilkowski, Detroit; former State Senators D. Stephen Benzie, Norway, Mich., and Ernest G. Nagel, Detroit; State Representatives Francis J. Nowak, Walter N. Stockfish, Edward J. Walsh, William G. Buckley, and Earl C. Gallagher, Detroit.

HOW TO CHOOSE A TROUT FLY

It is hard for a beginner to buy flies and not until he fishes a while is he able to know which flies to select. Some fishermen never seem to acquire this knowledge and it is their own fault, not the fly makers'.

Until the beginner pays less attention to the pattern and color of the fly and more attention to the way it is tied and the material used, he will be much confused. I believe that the Trude fly will teach him how to judge flies more quickly than any other common fly on the market. This fly tied with the hair of the squirrel's tail was brought out by Carter Harrison and named after his fishing friend, a lawyer named Trude.

The Trude, or squirrel tail, fly is as good as any all around fly you can buy for trout fishing. Floating on top of the water, it imitates the sedge fly, our largest caddis fly which hatches from its case of leaves or sticks underwater.

It is not at all a bad imitation of our largest stone flies which hatch from the largest nymphs in all our rapids. It is a fair imitation of our largest mayfly nymph which lives underwater for three years.

We have then, in the squirrel tail fly a representation of flies familiar sight in Grand Marais harbor, left this week for her new berth at Bayfield, Wisconsin. Fishermen and townsfolk alike, will miss her.

The "Josie" was purchased in 1924 by the Endress, Pettipren and Morse Fish company. Her former owner was William Breger of Milwaukee, Wis. At the time of her purchase she was four years old.

Old timers recall many harrowing as well as interesting experiences of the "Josie." She was one of the three fishing tugs that lay at Caribou Island during the November storm of 1932. It was in this storm that the tug "Lydia" was lost.

The "Josie's" new owner is Henry Johnson of Bayfield, Wis.

early phases of the beachhead fighting several months ago.

Lt. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese's Eighth army forces swept westward six miles from Ceprano to Pofi after throwing several bridges across the Liri and Sacco Rivers. The town of Arce, at the junction of the Via Cassilina and Highway 82, appeared ready to fall to Leese's troops, and Santo Padre, four and a half miles to the northeast, had been surrounded.

Enemy Lacks Artillery

The French were reported meeting only light resistance in their steady advance through the mountains, and there were indications the Nazis were running short of artillery in several sectors. A German prisoner said tanks had been used as artillery in recent fighting.

At some points it was evident the Germans were retreating with all possible speed, depending upon demolitions, mines and snipers to hold off the pursuing Allied forces. Nazi parachute troops were fighting stubbornly, however, in the Arce area.

A captured enemy report written by Lt. Col. Ziegler, commander of the 361st Grenadiers opposing the Eighth army, spoke of that regiment's severe casualties.

Allied fighter-bombers maintained their destructive campaign behind the lines, flying more than 2,000 sorties yesterday as they wrecked another 200 German vehicles and three tanks. Of 15 Nazi planes sighted over the battle area four were destroyed. Three Allied craft were lost in all operations.

It was announced officially that Allied warships ranging along the coast had poured more than 7,000 shells into the enemy's positions since the offensive began May 11. Yesterday a French cruiser scored hits on German artillery emplacements north of the beachhead.

WITH THE AEF IN ITALY. (delayed) (P)—It was a strange way for a boy to spend Mother's Day, but no matter where they were most of them thought about it quite a bit.

The infantry company crossing the meadow northwest of Minturno. Our own shells screamed overhead, punching into the German positions on the hill at the far end of the meadow, and the enemy mortars were chunking into the green grass around them.

Snipers' bullets sang intermittently through their rushing, broken ranks, and now and then a man would twist and then double and fall and the others scurried on.

But in that split second before he jumped the ditch and followed his comrades across the meadow, the dazed private who was going into combat for the first time saw none of this. He saw only the multi-colored flowers blooming in the meadow.

"Sure some nice flowers for Mother's Day there," he said.

Sgt. Jack Raymond of the Bronx, who writes for Stars and Stripes, was going back to the Beachhead on an LST with a bunch of boys who had been given a brief rest. They got to talking about Mother's Day.

"On Mother's Day there is always something special that makes you think of mom all the more," said Corp. Grant Pratt of Los Angeles. "We left the states May 10, 1942. Then a year later, May 9, 1943, we just finished up the Bizerte business, and now—"

Five of the boys on board had sent flowers to their mothers. They were Sgt. Edward Foffel of Baltimore and four corporals, William Rutherford of Fremont, Mich., William Kent of Elco, Pa., and Richard Corriden and Edward Counts of Indianapolis.

"I sent home a package of cameos for everybody," said Corp. Louis Citrin of Detroit. "My mother, my wife, the whole family. It was the first time in three years we've had a chance to send anything."

"I sent a letter," said Pfc. Russell Foster of Patriot, Ind. "It's more personal. You can't always say it with flowers, even roses."

"I wrote my sister a couple of weeks ago," said Corp. Woodbury Snyder of Lodi, Ohio. "I always write my sister on Mother's Day. My mom is dead. So I write to sis. I didn't send her anything. I said that next year—"

"Next year," interrupted Rutherford. "Next year we send ourselves home."

"That's what I wrote my sister," said Snyder.

WAR EFFECT IS BAD ON HEALTH

Most Civilians Suffer From Strain, Says Dr. Campbell

Most civilians suffer from wartime strain, demanding more frequent health examinations and a deliberate effort to slow down, Dr. Alexander M. Campbell, of the Michigan department of health, told the Escanaba Rotary club at its noon meeting yesterday.

Dr. Campbell shared the noon program time of the Rotary club with the chorus of the Escanaba high school a capella choir, directed by Paul Bowers. The 37 students composing the chorus sang a group of several numbers, including "O Susanna," "Onward Christian Soldiers," and an especially pleasing arrangement of "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The health of the nation leaves much to be desired, Dr. Campbell said. Among the approximately nine million youths examined by military service, three million were rejected. If the same examination had been given nine million women there would probably be similar result, he said. "This shows that we have been kidding ourselves concerning the state of our national health," Dr. Campbell added.

We must pay more attention to health. It is the patriotic thing to do. Children should be assured of safe environment, shielded from as much wartime disruption of the home as possible.

Particularly important is the spread of venereal disease. Before Pearl Harbor 55 per cent of venereal disease was spread by prostitutes, while today that same percentage is distributed by teenage girls.

The war is having a serious effect on the health of men on the home front, Dr. Campbell pointed out. Deaths in the middle and old-age brackets are increasing. There is strain, worry over the future, over sons in service, overtime work and business reasons.

"Our great national enemy is fatigue and worry, both arch-enemies of health," Dr. Campbell said. He urged periodic check-ups by the family physician and an application of the pattern of life laid down by the doctor.

WITH THE AEF IN ITALY. (delayed) (P)—Pvt. Lucien Thibodeau of Rumford, Maine is known among his fellow ack-ack gunners as "the wild Frenchman." This week they have a new exploit to explain the name.

It was sunny and fairly quiet last Sunday afternoon when the Bofors gunner, who won the silver star at the Rapido River crossing for rescuing a bunch of infantrymen from an exploding ammunition truck, got tired of battling the breeze with his buddies during an off duty stretch.

No One Volunteered He got up, yawned, stuck a captured Italian .44 in his hip pocket and asked if anyone cared to join him in a little stroll. Knowing the habits of Pvt. Lucien Thibodeau, no one volunteered so he sighed, regretfully and strolled down the Applan way toward the front.

At the combat line where the doughboys lay dug in an infantry captain asked Lucien where he was going.

"Up ahead," said Pvt. Thibodeau, "to see what's going on." Since it's scarcely customary along the Garigliano river front for soldiers to go sauntering into no man's land for fun, the captain naturally assumed the lean and lanky private had a reconnaissance mission to perform.

Reaching enemy lines, Thibodeau was practically pinned down by an American artillery barrage, so he slipped into a deserted enemy pillbox and sweated out for 30 minutes, then proceeded into Scauri, a German-occupied town.

He was slipping from house to house when suddenly, as he entered a stone house, he heard the back door slam. Thibodeau slipped around to a back window and saw three Germans crawling away in the back yard.

Make Them Surrender He could have slipped away quietly, being outnumbered, but it had been some time since he had seen a kraut and what with his Bofors work it probably would be some time before he would see another.

So he slipped out of the house, fired three shots at the Germans from nearby bushes to get them looking that way, returned to the house quietly and then, waving his revolver from the window, shouted to them to surrender. They did. He fricked them, then started them back toward no man's land. When a German machinegun opened up they had to crawl half a mile down a ditch. When they reached American lines again Thibodeau met the infantry captain, gave him one of the German knives, saluted and marched the men on down the road. The captain stood looking at him, scratching his head.

Pvt. Thibodeau, the "Wild Frenchman," may get bored again this Sunday and go for a stroll. It is also probable that none of his comrades will care to go with him.

wartime they are black, with a rough finish. Zippos are not available at all to civilians. In Army P. X.'s all around the world, where a batch comes in occasionally, there are long waiting lists.

Well, some months ago I had a letter from the president of the Zippo Company. It seems he is devoted to this column. It seems further that he'd had an idea. He had sent to our headquarters in Washington to get my signature, and then he was having the signature engraved on a special nickel-plated lighter and he is going to send it to me as a gift.

Pretty soon there was another letter. The president of the Zippo Company had had another brainstorm. In addition to my super-heterodyne lighter he was going to send 50 of the regular ones for me to give to friends.

I was amused at the modesty of the president's letter. He said, "You probably know nothing about the Zippo lighter."

If he only knew how the soldiers covet them. They'll burn in the wind, and pilots say they are the only kind that will light at extreme altitudes. Why, they're so popular I've had three of them stolen from me in the past year.

Well, at last the lighters have come, forwarded all the way from Italy. My own lighter is a beauty, with my name on one side and a little American flag on the other.

I'm smoking twice as much as usual just because I enjoy lighting the thing.

The 50 others are going like hot cakes. I find myself equipped with a wonderful weapon for winning friends and influencing people. Thanks from all of us, Mr. Zippo.

The Army occasionally gets the correspondents together for instructions on preparing for the second front. Sometimes we have fun at these meetings.

For example, the other day an officer got up and said the time had come for us to make our powers of attorney and prepare our wills. If we hadn't done so already. Everybody in the room laughed—you know, one of those cackly, mirthless laughs of a man who is a little sick at his stomach.

And then the officer was explaining that we could take with us only what we could carry on our backs, and the rest of our stuff would be turned over to the Army and would probably catch up with us a couple of weeks after we reached the other side.

Whereupon one correspondent, newly arrived in these parts, asked: "Should we carry our steel helmets and gas masks or put them in the luggage to be forwarded later?"

The poor fellow was almost laughed out of the room. Does one send for the fire department two weeks after the house has burned down?

You just can't break down English traditions. For example, I registered at a hotel as Ernie Pyle and then on another line gave my full three names, as the law requires.

And do you know how my hotel bill comes? It comes weekly in a sealed envelope on which is typed, "E. Taylor-Pyle, Esq."

In a couple of weeks if I'm a good boy I hope to have "The Honorable" put in front of my name.

Killed

Perronville—The second huge bear, within a week, has been captured in the vicinity of Whitney. The two hundred and fifty pound beast visited and made away with ten of Jerry Charbonneau's chickens one night early in the week and on Thursday night entered one part of the barn of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Larson and took three chickens, returned and clawed off the boards and double wiring which the Larsons had placed up on the chicken coop windows to protect the flock from bears, who had carried away several chickens the previous week.

Alfred Schoen, deputy sheriff, of Perronville, was notified of the loss of the dozen chickens, and he and his son, Allen, Ben and Clifford Johnson, went to the Larson home about 6:30 Friday evening to await the coming of the bear. At 8:15 o'clock, the

"Escape" Into History

In wartime, when most books are necessarily topical, even in occasional rare "escape" novel usually smells of the condition under which it was composed. The novelist makes such a supreme effort to appear to get away from the subject of the war that the strain itself gives the writer away.

This is not true of the newest "escape" novel that has won attention in more than one country. In it the war does not appear even by faintest implication or allusion; the book might have been written a century ago, both as to subject matter and as to manner.

It is called "Blessed Are the Meek," and the author is Zofia Kossak. It is through the author alone that the book is connected with the war, and that more closely than most books that deal directly with that subject. Madame Kossak was born in eastern Poland; her father was a major in the Polish cavalry. Her husband is in a German concentration camp. She herself, after a distinguished career as a writer, was forced to leave her home after the German occupation, to seek a precarious refuge in Warsaw. When last heard from she was still there, a kind of German prisoner.

That is the background of this writing of this novel that Sigrid bear was seen coming out of the woods about four hundred and fifty feet from the coop, where the watchers were waiting. Schoen, being in the sharp-shooter's class, put old Bruin out of commission with a single shot.

Undset has praised and that is being widely used as "escape" reading in several countries. An American translation has now been brought out so that readers in this country have an opportunity through it to escape into history, more of an escape than the author herself can achieve at least in a physical sense.

For the action of "Blessed Are the Meek" takes place in the early decades of the thirteenth century. The hero of the book is none other than St. Francis of Assisi, and a greater contrast could hardly be imagined than that which naturally exists between him and the typical hero of a twentieth century novel.

For St. Francis, at least as portrayed by Madame Kossak, took the words of Christ literally that his followers were not to own any property of any kind. He gathers about him a few followers who go from place to place, doing good, living humbly from hand to mouth, spreading the gospel. What Francis fears most is owning anything; he believes that the possessive instinct is the most deadly foe to the Christian life. His followers are not even given a foot that they need for any single day.

Contrasted with St. Francis in the novel are various persons who are ruled by the possessive instinct—the same instinct that has nearly everybody in its grasp today and that is obviously a major cause of the trouble in which the world finds itself. There is for instance the king of Jerusalem, who is slated to lead the Fifth Crusade. There is the Cardinal whom the Pope chooses to serve as the supreme commander of that Crusade. There are various other minor figures who incarnate the possessive instinct.

In the end they all come to grief. Throughout the novel they look upon St. Francis, the penniless vagabond, as a fool and a madman. For Francis is meek and humble. He is interested only in the early Christian ideal of a kingdom that is not of this world. He is always ready to be anybody's servant, and of course he is poor by conviction.

Those others are rich and powerful and they despise meekness as much as that virtue is almost universally despised today. Yet in the end it is they who turn out to be fools, even in terms of the own standards but Francis deserves the phrase of the author's title, "Blessed Are the Meek."

MEMORIAL DAY

"The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that the Government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

There's Still A Question

THE condition of President Roosevelt's health, which has been the subject of a lot of whispering about Washington for several weeks, is finally being made a matter of comment in news dispatches and by columnists. Without authoritative information from the president's medical advisers the impression the public must draw from these rumors, is that the state of Mr. Roosevelt's physical condition is giving more than ordinary concern not only to his physicians but to party leaders, as well.

Official announcements have admitted that the president has not recovered fully from a prolonged attack of the flu and that frequent vacations and lessened official demands upon his time, have not served to restore his former buoyancy and spirit.

Naturally, under these conditions, the political dopesters are more than hinting that there still remains a possibility that Mr. Roosevelt will neither seek nor accept nomination for a fourth term for the presidency, because of the physical strain that would, necessarily, accompany a heated political campaign.

It is now being admitted by the most authoritative sources in Washington that events of the next few weeks, as applied to Mr. Roosevelt's health, will have a most important bearing on the verdict of the national Democratic party convention, when it convenes in Chicago early in July.

In other words, a doctor's verdict, more than any other consideration, will control the New Deal party's choice for its standard bearer.

Swedish Ball Bearings

EXTENSIVE efforts made by the Swedish government in this country since the outbreak of the European war to justify its neutrality policy were obtaining fairly good results until it was revealed that the Scandinavian country was exporting large quantities of ball bearings to Germany.

The American and British forces made many raids at a heavy cost of men's lives and planes to bomb ball bearing plants within the Reich. The Allies thought they were doing a good job of cutting down Hitler's supply of this vital war material, only to learn later that Germany was making up the deficiency by imports from Sweden.

The Allies protested to the Swedish government and placed 38 ball bearing manufacturers on the black list, raising to 426 the total number of Swedish firms in disfavor for trading with the enemy.

There are signs now that Allied pressure will halt the flow of ball bearings to Germany. The Swedish government is becoming increasingly aware that Hitler is doomed to defeat and will want to have the good will of the United States and Britain after the Allied victory is won.

It is believed that Sweden will take one of two alternatives. She can either sell the entire output of ball bearings of the Allies or declare ball bearings an essential war material no longer eligible for export. The latter course is regarded as the one Sweden will be more likely to take.

Memorial Day

THROUGHOUT most of the states today, Americans will do honor to the men whose lives have brought us so far along the road to victory. There is no need to urge the solemnity of this Memorial Day, for no one can be insensible to the increasing debt that the nation owes to them and to the others who, with tragic certainty, must follow them before the end of that road is reached.

This is a day of American homage to American fighting men. But it does not seem inappropriate to the spirit of the observance that we should remember at the same time the soldiers and sailors of Allied and occupied nations who have died in the common cause.

Let us look back at other Memorial Days of this war. May 30, 1940, was perhaps the blackest day of the blitzkrieg. The retreat from Dunkirk was at its height. The Allied armies were shattered and fleeing. Nothing stood in the way of the onrushing Germans.

A year later Dunkirk was being repeated in Crete. Nazi paratroopers had driven the British into the sea. Nazi planes were bombing the transports that rescued the remnants of the defenders.

The next Memorial Day found America and Russia in the war. That day one Japanese submarine had sunk an American ship off Seattle, another had shelled Australia. The Nazis were completing their occupation of Kharkov and the Kerch peninsula.

But that day, too, the tide began to turn as more than 1400 British planes bombed Cologne.

On May 20, 1943, great fleets of American bombers were over France. On At-tu, American soldiers fought with rifle butts, bayonets, knives and fists. By the end of the day the Jap defenders were annihilated.

The men who fell at Dunkirk and Crete, at Pearl Harbor and Bataan, at Kharkov and Sevastopol, died in desperate, bitter fighting for what may have seemed then a hopeless cause. But the blows they struck, with what weapons they had, made possible the turning tide and the victory that will come.

Let us remember them, all of them, and the men who must give their lives today and every day until the enemy is finally crushed. And let us honor them with honest efforts to speed this war to its end to secure the world from the horror of its return.

Sees Postwar Boom

OUT of the lessons gained in World War II the wood preserving industry is looking forward optimistically to the greatly increased use of its products when peacetime production begins.

Both the army and navy have found many new uses for treated lumber, which are expected to make for greater permanence and strength in postwar construction.

Treated wood has demonstrated its dependability in heavy construction as well as in the home building field by providing resistance to fire, termites and decay. Experiments are being conducted toward perfecting a combination treatment by which the triple protection is given in a single operation at a relatively low cost.

Research is being pressed forward to develop new methods for the processing of wood, a phase of lumbering engineering which has made possible the construction of barracks and bomber bases in the tropics, giant wooden blimp hangars along the nation's coasts, huge war production plants, and many other projects of vital wartime importance, without the use of steel.

The treated lumber output of 185 wood preserving plants has an estimated annual capacity of more than four billion board feet. This industry has been in the forefront in demonstrating the value of wood for construction and other purposes. It is contributing much toward giving permanence to the lumbering industry in the Upper Peninsula and other forest regions.

PRAYER, NOT CELEBRATION (Detroit Free Press)

Plans have been laid by the State Office of Civilian Defense, in co-operation with the Governor's office and Federal officials, in order that Michigan may observe one minute of silent prayer on D-Day.

The observance will not come simultaneously with the first flash that Gen. Eisenhower has given the signal of assault. It will arrive a number of hours later, possibly three or more, depending partly on whether the word of H-Hour comes during the day or at night. This will allow sufficient time for the general public to learn of the invasion, through the newspapers and other mediums of communication.

For the moment of commemoration air-raid sirens, church bells and factory whistles will sound for 90 seconds throughout the State. Thereafter will follow one minute of silence, a brief time of prayer and earnest meditation on the significant of the event, of petitions for Divine protection of our fighting men and for the early success of our arms. Observance, of course, will be voluntary. But it is hoped that traffic will halt and wherever possible men and women in the factories, students in schools, office workers, employees and customers in stores will join in the solemn event.

This simple ceremony is in no sense a celebration. It will be a time of heart-searching and earnest dedication. All Michigan should join hands and minds and spirit in observance.

The expression "politics makes strange bedfellows" probably came from most of them using the same bunk.

A Michigan judge says the day will come when there are no bootleggers. That will mean an awful lot of night work.

HANDBOOK OF PRACTICAL ENGLISH

Q. For our stenographic staff, please give us a ruling on whether commas, periods, and question marks should precede or follow the final quotation mark.

A. Periods and commas precede the quotation mark, thus:

He said, "I am going," and we saw him no more.

If the question mark belongs with the matter quoted, it should precede the quotation mark, thus:

But note: Did she say, "I am invited?" Q. Is "contraction" a good word?

A. I shouldn't use it in serious speech or writing. Better say: contrivance; appliance; device. "Gad-get" is regarded as slang.

Q. Is it correct to say, "The people were evacuated from the city?"

A. Since evacuate means "to make empty," the sentence is more logical thus: "The city was evacuated." However, "The people were evacuated" is used by many good writers, and Merriam-Webster's sanctions it.

Q. Please distinguish between "imply" and "infer."

A. The speaker implies; the listener infers. A. S. "I do not mean to imply, nor do I wish you to infer that . . ."

World War In The Air

BY MAJOR A. P. de SEVERSKY

The greatest aerial offensive of all time is now in full swing against Germany. It is of such dimensions that, provided the present tempo is maintained, one may confidently expect that the will of the enemy to resist will be broken.

I need not cite again the widely published statistics of the tonnage in explosives being rained on the enemy's most important targets day after day. Whether this aerial assault will bring Germany to its knees by direct action or whether, by denuding that country of war industry, it makes invasion a practical venture, the central fact is that we have at last accumulated enough machines and men to put the basic principles of air strategy into operation. The action is proceeding with a magnificent upsurge of effectiveness.

Yet this great job over Europe somehow leaves the American public apathetic. Certainly there is no ground swell of enthusiasm commensurate with the great effort under way. Here and there, in fact, one notes veiled suspicions about the value of the whole enterprise. Worse, the very ability of airmen to analyze and appraise the facts is being questioned. Some molders of opinion are even warning Americans to take the claims of air force leaders with a big dose of skepticism.

—KALTENBORN QUOTED—

A typical example of this public attitude was provided in a broadcast by H. V. Kaltenborn, the more significant because he is one of the ablest and most intelligent of our radio commentators. On May 5 he said in part:

"The whole temper and training of the aviator makes him a natural optimist. He needs that optimism in his work and he is entitled to it, considering what aviation has accomplished in this war. But the rest of us will be wise if we insist on a sober appraisal of the aviator's day-to-day achievements. I don't question his facts. But I am not so sure about all the conclusions that have been drawn from those facts."

How explain the doubts manifest in these words, and the general public apathy? The answer, it seems to me, is to be found in the excessive zeal with which earlier and relatively mild air raids were reported, publicized and exploited. They were so vastly ballyhooed as "crucial," "decisive," the "final blow," etc., that now, when the real show is being staged, there is a psychological let-down.

Mr. Kaltenborn's impression of undue optimism in the official analyses of aerial war events rests, I feel sure, on statements and claims emanating from political rather than from combat spokesmen. His strictures, in justice, should be directed to those who control our policy in domestic aviation propaganda, rather than to airmen in general.

When American Air Forces struck at Schweinfurt for the first time, for instance, we were told out of Washington that we had destroyed 50 per cent of Germany's ball bearing capacity. Eager reporters naturally took such claims at face value and blazoned them on the front pages. But the claims could not and did not stand up. We have been obliged to bomb Schweinfurt again and again and the same is true of other plants pronounced dead and buried.

I believe that the average American has been anaesthetized by this earlier technique of promotion and publicity out of Washington. All the glittering adjectives have been worn threadbare. We are now reaping skepticism where we sowed superlatives.

—CANNOT BLAME AIRMEN—

Certainly the blame for this does not rest with airmen in the fields of action. They have always emphasized the difficulties when laymen and non-combatant officials were putting the stress on achievements. Out of political headquarters in Washington we are receiving glowing tributes to airplanes which the boys who flew them and fought in them knew to be below par. Over-optimistic writers were deriding the abilities of German aviators at a time when our fliers were praising the skill and heroism of their opponents.

No, the exaggerations, which now serve to depress public interest, cannot be debited to air power advocates. Can anything be more conservative than these excerpts from a statement recently made by General Jimmy Doolittle:

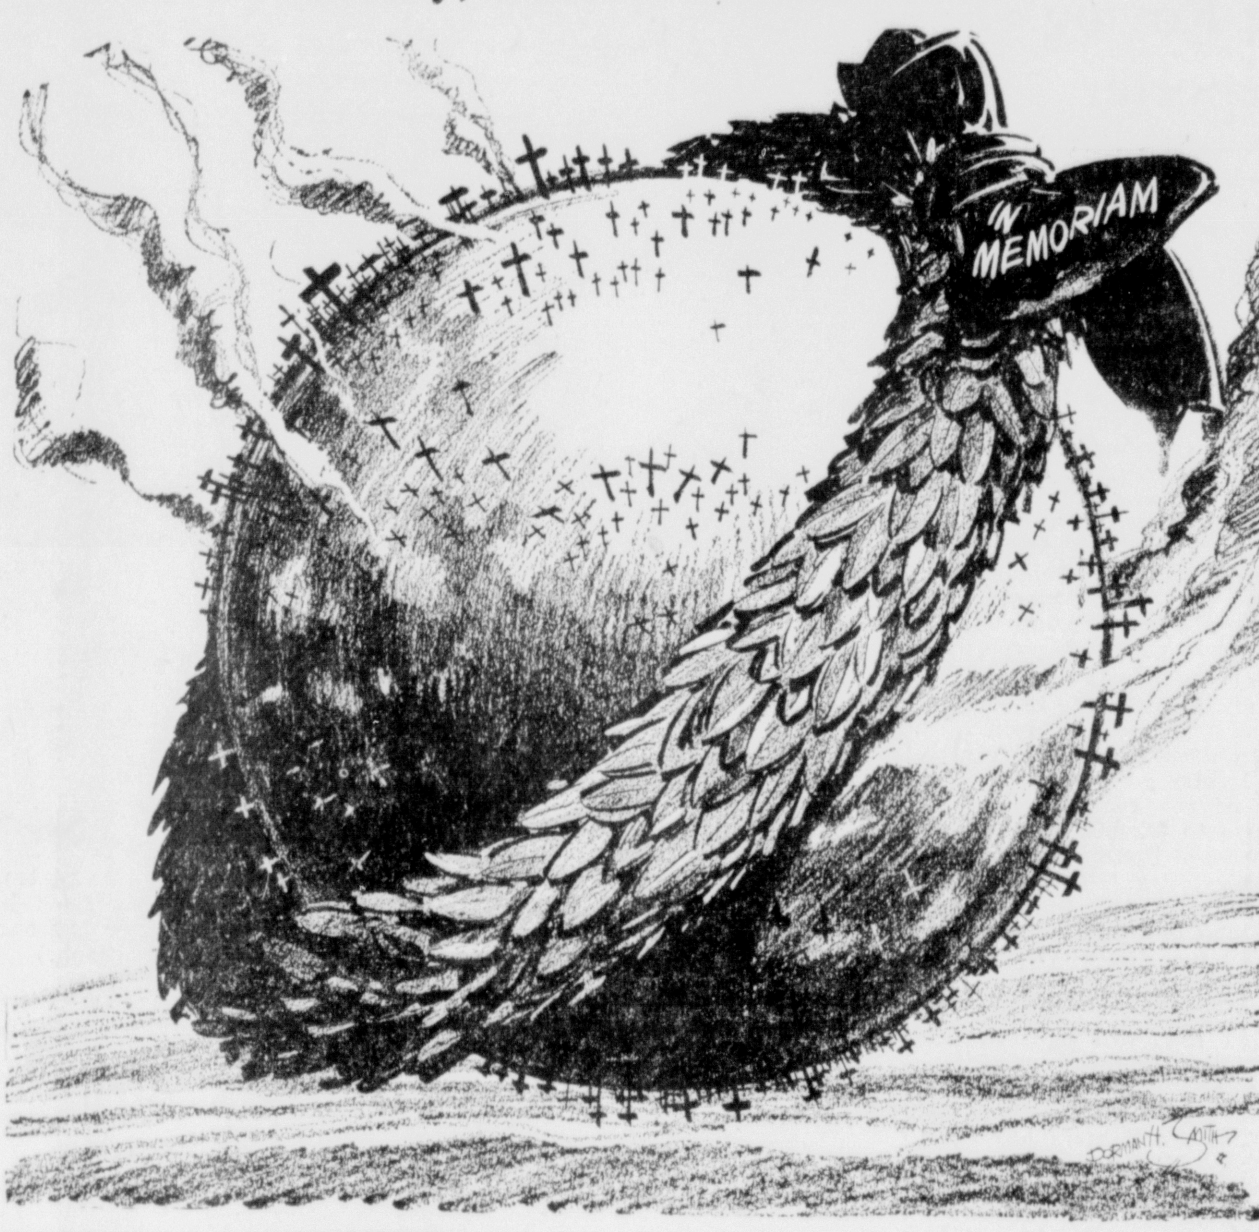

"Among the targets in Germany hit in April were 28 factories producing aircraft or aircraft parts. Incomplete photographic reconnaissance, incomplete because of unfavorable weather for aerial photography, indicates that six of these were almost completely demolished and 15 or more were damaged to the point where immediate production was seriously curtailed or stopped. How long they will remain out of production will depend upon the German capacity to repair and rebuild. By assigning top priority for labor materials, the Germans in past instances have been able to rebuild their factories in a remarkably short time, and we've had to make return visits to targets previously put out of action."

Reading it, one feels that Doolittle is aware of the handicaps, the uncertainties, the need for not over-estimating results. And his method is typical of the trained man, who prefers to play down instead of playing up. When men like Doolittle, Spaatz, Harris, Kenney make claims, they are likely to err on the side of restraint and conservatism.

Today, It Encircles the World

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

PROHIBITION TREND—The prohibition question continues to be one of the most controversial in this country. Not because it is of too great importance, but because the forces of intolerance are at work on both sides of the picture.

There are those today, just as there were those in the first world war, who seek to make capital of wartime conditions to fan the fires of anti-liquor feeling. And there are also those who, wartime or not, seek to widen the sphere of influence of the liquor interests.

To the former it means the imposition of minority feeling upon the majority; to the latter it is an effort to degrade human dignity for cash profit.

There is only one reasonable approach to the liquor question: Regulate the rum trade equitably and fairly, always considering the welfare and the future of our citizenry.

IN FAIRNESS—As time goes on we will hear more and more of the contribution the distilleries are making to the war effort. They have made no liquor since October 8, 1942. The plants are now turning out wartime alcohol.

So what? Automobile plants are no longer making automobiles, radio manufacturers are working for Uncle Sam, and the nation's whole industrial machinery is geared to wartime production. The distilleries under war contracts are making more money than they did making whiskey. They deserve no sympathy and they should receive none.

So far as the consumer of alcoholic beverages is concerned, he also deserves no sympathy. There is a shortage and there is rationing. But so is butter, sugar and other essential foods rationed. And the tippler can always weep into his beer if he wants to.

Likewise there is little to be said favorably for the prohibitionists. They will try to tell you that liquor causes absenteeism, and that the war effort would be better served without the vile stuff. Well, baseball, fishing, horse racing and politics cause absenteeism too. So do strikes, vacations, funerals and holidays.

Whereas all of the factors causing absenteeism are regulated either by law or custom, the prohibitionist singles out liquor as something to eliminate altogether. Why not prohibit the others as well?

SENSIBLE REGULATION—The answer to the liquor question is not one of extremes. It is sensible and commonsense regulation such as we have in Michigan today that will answer the problem.

Felix Flynn, commissioner of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission, speaking to Delta County licensees here recently, said:

"There are few who are neutral on the liquor question. There are decided opinions on both sides. But what is considered the most serious offense by the licensee is the sale to minors."

And again:

"We see a further cut in the amount of domestic whiskeys available, with tighter rationing of the liquor. The commission could permit more whiskey to come into the state, but it refuses to lower its standards. We want to be sure that the liquor that is sold will have the least harm that it will have."

In hearings held the day following his talk, two licensees were revoked, and a third may be revoked also. Several licensees had their operations suspended for varying periods.

That is sensible regulation. The liquor trade is controlled rigidly by the state so that it will do the least possible harm. Men in the liquor business who step out of bounds are penalized severely.

Michigan has done an excellent overall job in controlling the liquor traffic. Right now New York State citizens, and citizens of at least one other state, are circulating petitions seeking legislation for state control of the rum trade such as we have in Michigan.

WHAT WE NEED—We do not need prohibition in Michigan. Neither the time nor the need is right or sufficient for an attempt to bring prohibition back.

Prohibitionists should walk carefully, avoiding the pitfalls that have made the public accept the caricature of the prohibitionist as an intolerable and nosey nuisance.

Public sentiment is against the forces of oppression. Public sentiment is against legislation which it believes, rightly or wrongly, would once again throw the rum trade into the hands of gangsters, murderers and bootleggers. Public sentiment is for rigid control of the liquor business, but not for prohibition.

What we need in every community is an aroused consciousness of the individual's obligation to his community.

If our young people are frequenting liquor joints, it is the fault of the community, not the licensee or the law. The licensee doesn't want the kid business. It's dynamite. He tries just about every way he knows to keep them out, but there is no law says the youth over 17 can't go in—so long as he doesn't drink.

To drive the liquor business under illicit cover would open wide the bootlegger's door to boys and girls.

What we need is strict regulation of the liquor business—and parents who have more than a perfunctory interest in the whereabouts of their children.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington — The Capitol Police, appointed by Democratic Congressmen as part of their private patronage, last week attained the unique distinction of barring two United Nations ambassadors from a Capitol ceremony to which the ambassadors had been officially invited.

The occasion was the unveiling of a plaque in honor of Samuel F. B. Morse, who sent his first telegraph message from the same Capitol just 100 years ago. In the Rotunda of the Capitol gathered Congressmen and foreign diplomats to watch Ernest E. Morris, president of the Southern Railroad, tap out the message. "What hath God wrought?"

Arriving at 11:05, came genial Yugoslav Ambassador Fotitch, long a diplomatic fixture in Washington, with dapper Greek Ambassador Diamantopoulos. Both represent countries fighting side by side with the U. S. A.

As they were about to enter the Rotunda, a Capitol policeman stopped them. The two diplomats were dressed in ordinary business clothes, and apparently the cop did not believe they were ambassadors, even when they showed their credentials. Or perhaps he didn't think ambassadors were important.

"I haven't any instructions about you guys," he ruled.

The two ambassadors departed, but not happily.

—BIG LIQUOR COMPANY FAVORED—
A surprising case in which the State Department threw its official weight in favor of one of the bigger liquor companies in the country—Schenley—in contrast to smaller companies, has been under investigation by bloodhound Congressman Eddie Hebert of Louisiana. Schenley was favored by the State Department, and yet, on May 2, it was indicted by the Justice Department on a charge of black-marketeering.

Congressman Hebert, who tracked down some of the Brewster airplane scandals, has discovered that Schenley unloaded a cargo of Martini rum in New Orleans on April 24, despite the fact that the War Production Board had barred all further importations of rum until quotas were fixed.

The WPB order was issued March 10, effective March 15, thus giving the rum trade plenty of warning. Motive behind the banning of rum shipments was the fact that rum was pouring into the U. S. A. from the West Indies instead of molasses and industrial alcohol, both vitally needed for the war.

Hebert charges, Schenley on April 4 loaded up the vessel, Duc d'Aumale at Martinique with 104,289 gallons of rum. The ship sailed for New Orleans on April 6. When it arrived in New Orleans on April 24, the WPB embargo against rum importations was still in effect. No quotas had yet been announced by WPB for further importations.

Therefore, WPB started to enforce its order and ban Schenley's 104,289 gallons of rum. The WPB order also provides for a fine and imprisonment for violations.

—STATE DEPARTMENT INTERVENES—
However, the State Department intervened and overruled the War Production Board. Schenley was permitted to deliver its highly profitable and intoxicating windfall.

Meanwhile, smaller companies were not able to import from Martinique or other Caribbean areas. One small company in Chicago had a carload of Mexican rum arrive at Laredo, Texas, in late March, and still has not been able to move the car, meanwhile paying a small fortune in daily demurrage charges.

Congressman Hebert also charges that several small Louisiana firms had rum purchased and ready for import in mid-March in contrast to Schenley's illegal April delivery.

While the State Department is entrusted with ruling on foreign policy, U. S. policy is definitely against the State Department's favoring one American company as against another abroad. Congressman Hebert, therefore, has asked the State Department why it discriminated in favor of the giant Schenley firm, which has been indicted by the U. S. Government, yet kept smaller companies on the waiting list.

—FULL PAY FOR RETIRED OFFICERS—
Higher-ranking Army and Navy officers have recently discovered a neat way of retiring on full pay instead of ordinary retirement pay, which is only two-thirds as much. They go to the hospital a month or so before they are slated to retire for age, and then are sometimes able to retire with disability, which gives them full pay the rest of their lives.

This system is based upon the fact that Congress recently changed the Army-Navy retirement set-up in order to aid wounded men. It was provided that a veteran might retire on full pay if disabled.

However, it was the intent of Congress to aid young lieutenants and lower-ranking officers who usually suffer the highest casualties in wartime due to the fact that they have to be in the front lines.

Apparently, Congress did not realize that, when a colonel or a general reaches the retirement age of 64, it is not uncommon for him to have arthritis, gall stones or some other disability which can be discovered at an Army hospital a few months before he retires. This gives him full pay for life.

Another interesting angle to retirement pay is that an officer getting retired pay cannot take another job from the Government and get paid for it, but he can take a job with a company under a

Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of
A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE C-256: Martha M., aged 27, is a former school teacher who is now a father's wife.

"My husband is also becoming addicted to alcohol but we aren't near any society of 'Alcoholics Anonymous,'" she began our interview.

"Is there anything that I can do to help him overcome this addiction to whiskey?"

Diagnosis
Chronic alcoholism should usually be regarded as the fire escape on a burning building.

It is an escape mechanism. If you recklessly tear the fire escape off the building without first attempting to put out the fire, the victims will try to break forth in some other direction. They may, for example, jump to sure death, rather than remain near the conflagration which is tormenting them.

Seek first the cause that makes the victim wish to escape via liquor. Then try to remedy the basic conflict or fear, and you will have a much easier time eliminating the liquor habit.

Even an admirable organization like "Alcoholics Anonymous" will not be able to keep its members permanently cured unless it goes to the root of their conflict.

Why People Drink Whiskey
When folks are afraid, they may seek to anesthetize their brain or conscience by alcohol.

Salesmen, therefore, are often so terrified at the thought of contacting an important prospect that they drink excessively to escape this inner conflict.

When men approach the age of 40, they tend to become sexual hypochondriacs, worried lest they be losing their masculine vigor.

This very worry and self-analysis can throw a man into complete psychological impotence in a short time.

In their terror, these men turn to gambling or reckless driving or younger women or especially to alcohol.

Many a young husband not even 30 years of age has held the wrong view with reference to feminine passion. When he finds his own ability or become jealous of imaginary former suitors and finally try to escape from such torment via the anesthesia of whiskey.

Others during their wife's pregnancy may grow secretly jealous of the unborn baby, and in their conscious revulsion at such an attitude, may try to flee from their conscience via alcohol.

Crutch of Weaklings
Men who don't know how to carry on an interesting conversation and are socially shy, may also lean upon alcohol as a crutch.

Others who are boasters or four-flushers before marriage, may later try to hide in drunkenness when their wives find them out.

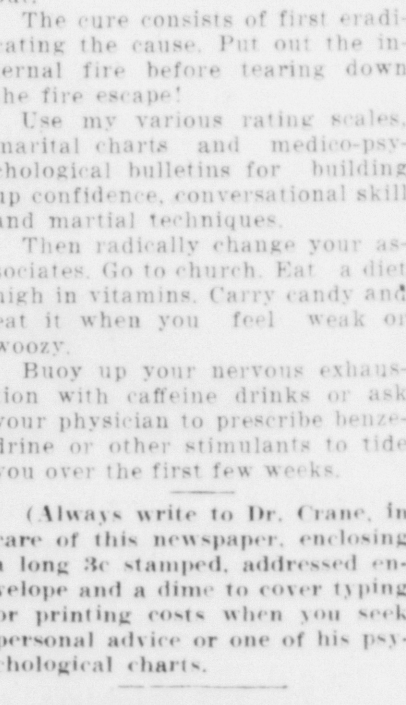

The cure consists of first eradicating the cause. Put out the internal fire before tearing down the fire escape!

Use my various rating scales, marital charts and medico-psychological bulletins for building up confidence, conversational skill and marital techniques.

Then radically change your associates. Go to church. Eat a diet high in vitamins. Carry candy and eat it when you feel weak or woozy.

Biopsy your nervous exhaustion with caffeine drinks or ask your physician to prescribe benzadrine or other stimulants to tide you over the first few weeks.

(Always write to Dr. Crane, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

KALLIO ELECTED TO VFW POST

Senior Vice Commander Of U. P. District; Met Here Sunday

E. J. Kallio, quartermaster of the local Hiawatha Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was elected senior vice commander of the Upper Peninsula district at the annual Tenth District Encampment held in Escanaba Sunday.

Irvin S. Cobb of Ironwood was chosen district commander, and C. J. McCauley of Marquette junior vice commander. The meeting, which included a noon banquet, was held at Unity hall in Escanaba.

Escanaba City Manager George E. Bean was principal speaker, and outlined the responsibility of home front civilians and officials to adequately prepare for the return of servicemen to civilian life when the war ends.

Clifford Everett, Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan department commander, and John F. Willis, department chief of staff, also of the Sault, described the progress made by VFW in the past, and the problems and responsibilities which will confront the organization in the future. Commander Everett said membership in Michigan has grown from 13,000 to over 22,000 in the past year; while Willis reported that 10 new posts have been established in the state this past year.

Commander Jacob A. Bink of the host organization introduced the speakers at the banquet program. The Rev. James G. Ward spoke the invocation, and also as guest of the VFW was the Rev. Father Alphonsus. More than 100 persons attended the banquet. About 150 delegates from 10 VFW posts in the district were in Escanaba for the Encampment.

Introduced at the dinner was PM 3/e Irene Kallio of the Waves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kallio, who is visiting her home here on furlough from Corpus Christi, Texas.

The VFW Auxiliary held a meeting and memorial service at the city recreation center.

Captain Jack Lloyd, Who Saw Murder Of Hickok, Visits Here

Captain Jack Lloyd, 76-year-old veteran of the far west, was a visitor in Escanaba yesterday.

With flowing beard, 10-gallon hat and all the other accoutrements of his adventurous career, Captain Lloyd drew plenty of attention on Ludington street yesterday.

Captain Lloyd's career goes back to the days when the turbulent west was in the making. The veteran claims to be the last survivor who saw the actual shooting of the famous Westerner, "Wild Bill" Hickok.

"I was selling newspapers at the time, in the Bello Union, the hot-spot of Deadwood, where the shooting took place," the captain said.

Lloyd joined the Texas Rangers in his youth, was a deputy marshal in many of the early cow and mining towns, and was in Tombstone, Ariz., when he met up with the notorious Wyatt Earp, friend of the equally notorious Bat Masterson. The captain claims an active part, too, in one of the most fearsome gun fights of that day, with the outlaws. In his trail-blazing hey-day Captain Jack was credited with beating 67 men to the draw, when the "Old 45" was the law of the land. Lloyd says, also, that he knew Billy the Kid, Big-Nose George, the James Boys and the Star gang, and that he had a hand in the capture of Al Jennings, widely-known train robber.

Hunting And Fishing

By Sid Gordon

THE DUCKS WILL BE OFF THE NESTS

Soon the ducks will be off their nests and the ducklings will be seen following every twist and turn of the mother in the water. There is no nicer sight on stream or lake than to watch the busy little "urchins" when you are fishing.

While thousands nest here in Wisconsin and Michigan the main population hatches in Canada. We could feed thousands more ducks here if they would only stay, for most of our lakes are full of duck food.

Just as soon as the ice goes out there is a slight warming of the water at the shoreline. The floating duck meat begins their small mats, increasing to great size mats later.

In the shallow water the little green plant, tritricha, shoots its leaves along their underwater branches so that as soon as the ducklings are hatched there is much food for duck and duckling.

TVA Plan Effective For Flood Control

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—Members of the house who, temporarily at least, have checked Senator McKellar's raid on the Tennessee Valley Authority deserve a lot of credit. They are proving that the house, with its unwieldy membership, is a more responsible body than the senate, which permits McKellar to carry on a personal feud without respect even for common decency.

As it appears in the newspapers, the fight in congress over TVA tends to have a remote and abstract sound. It's "politics." Actually, of course, it directly concerns things that are most important to the people of this continent.

No Floods in TVA Area

Consider for a moment a striking contrast.

In the middle west, flooded rivers have been on the rampage. The headlines tell a grimly repetitious story—millions of dollars in property damage, loss of human life, homes destroyed.

Now what about the Tennessee valley? They've had heavy rainfall there, too, and yet no reports of damaging floods have come out of the valley that TVA is remaking. Water in the Tennessee valley is man's servant, not his master.

One of the big problems of our time, it seems to me, is to make people understand such things. The other day I saw a survey by one of the public opinion polls showing, by percentages, woeful ignorance on major public questions. Only 37 per cent of all adults, for example, know that we are getting reverse lend-lease from Britain. Sixty per cent had never heard or read about the Atlantic charter.

It reminded me of a speech made at a recent I.L.O. conference in Philadelphia by John Grierson, Canada's government film commissioner. Grierson was talking about this very difficulty of relating the big issues of our day to the personal problems of the average citizen. Up in Canada, Grierson is making a series of films on such things as housing, new methods of farming, and so on. These films have proved enormously popular.

Job For Disney

Our own government tried something like this at the beginning of the new deal. One or two pictures were remarkably effective. But why should it be left to the government, with the almost inevitable controversies that grow out of government action?

Walt Disney has shown his ability to take a set of facts and put them in a language so clear and forceful that no one could miss the point. Disney could take this business of flood control and the benefits of TVA and make the story as dramatic as "Snow White."

Support for TVA, in the present fight, from almost every section of the press indicates that the TVA approach is now more or less out of the field of partisan politics. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch is leading a drive for "TVA" in the Missouri valley. The drive is gaining wide support out there and consequently is attracting notice here in Washington.

It's a recognition that, in the age of power, collective action is necessary to save the good earth. Such action doesn't need to be Communist or Fascist. The pioneer roots of this country go back to the democracy of husking bees and barn-raising.

As it's worked out, the TVA pattern would seem to be the most effective one for developing and preserving all the natural resources of a river system. Under TVA, all elements—water, land, power—have been related.

In the central valley in California, the department of the interior is trying to relate irrigation and power, but political pressure threatens to open the way to wholesale land speculation. While army engineers do a first rate technical job on flood control, they are limited by their exclusive concern with technique.

The best feature of the TVA is the fact that it is decentralized. There is no vast office in Washington sending its pro-consuls to the provinces to lay down Caesar's

Dr. Campbell To Lecture at Nahma

Dr. Alexander M. Campbell of the Michigan Department of Health, will address the men at the Nahma Club House on Wednesday evening, May 31, on "The Effect of War on Civilian Health". The lecture is being arranged by the local B. A. of R. E. Welfare Club. Women are also invited to attend.

Dr. Campbell, nationally known authority on obstetrics and diseases of women, is conducting a state-wide health education program among physicians and non-professional people for the Michigan Department of Health.

His illustrated lectures explaining methods of preventing deaths and illness among mothers and their babies are well received by parents throughout Michigan. In addition to his appearances before groups of women, Dr. Campbell has special messages for fathers which make him a popular speaker on Rotary, Kiwanis and other men's club programs.

More than thirty years in private practice as a successful obstetrician gives Dr. Campbell a background which well qualifies him for his present work. In his efforts to interest men and women in improving conditions for mothers and babies, Dr. Campbell has the support of physicians all over the state. That his work is recognized by them is shown in their requests for his services as a consultant and lecturer.

Anyone who wishes to ask questions following the lecture may do so.

What happens when your hat comes down?

SOMEDAY, a group of grim-faced men will walk stiffly into a room, sit down at a table, sign a piece of paper—and the War will be over.

That'll be quite a day. It doesn't take much imagination to picture the way the hats will be tossed into the air all over America on that day.

But what about the day after?

What happens when the tumult and the shouting have died, and all of us turn back to the job of actually making this country the wonderful place we dreamed it would be "after the War"?

No man knows just what going to happen then. But we know one thing that must not happen:

We must not have a postwar America fumbling to restore an out-of-gear economy, staggering under the burden of idle factories and idle men, wracked with internal dissension and stricken with poverty and want.

We must not have breadlines and vacant farms and jobless, tired men in Army overcoats tramping city streets.

That is why we must buy War Bonds—now.

For every time you buy a Bond, you not only help finance the War. You help to build up a vast reserve of postwar buying power. Buying power that can mean millions of postwar jobs making billions of dollars' worth of postwar goods and a healthy, prosperous, strong America in which there'll be a richer, happier living for every one of us.

To protect your Country, your family, and your job after the War—buy War Bonds now!

LOGGING TREND IS DESCRIBED

Carl Sawyer Recounts Changes In Past 45 Years

Changes which have transpired in the lumbering industry in the past 45 years were interestingly described by Carl J. Sawyer of the Sawyer-Stoll Timber company yesterday noon before the Gladstone Rotary club.

Sawyer started in the lumbering game as a "swampy" in the pine forests of the Rainey River country in Minnesota in 1895. At that time camps were of log construction with shakes for roof and had large box stoves at either end. Some had triple-decker bunks while others were entered by the end. At any rate, the speaker said, those camps were the stoves roasted while the ones farthest away nearly froze to death.

Getting supplies was the big problem and the "chuck" was ample but plain. There was always baked beans, sometimes potatoes, salt pork and "red horse" or corned beef. Prunes were on the menu sometimes but never fresh fruit, although some dried apples and apricots were received when the transportation got better. They ate the best first so they always had the best. Some camps hired a man who kept the camp supplied with fresh meat, moose and deer. Lumberjacks walked to camp, even though forty miles away and they received their pay in the spring. Sometimes they were given time checks even then.

Today, camps are light and bright, sanitary with electric lights, single bunks and some even have showers and radio. The "jacks" are driven to the camp and can have their pay any time they demand it.

As to hours worked, the veteran lumbermen said that in the old days they worked all of daylight and maybe a little longer—an eight-hour day wasn't heard of then. He told the one about a riverhog in the old days approaching a jobber for work on the drive and in reply to a query as to whether there was much lost time in his crews the jobber replied, "No, not much, only a few hours in the middle of the night."

In the olden days trees were chopped down and the logs then sawed and the logs sawed, then came sawing of the tree and sawing of the logs and today where timber is of any size a power saw is used. The trend in transportation of the logs down to the present system of truck and trailer was shown. In the woods horses replaced oxen while the tractor later replaced the horse.

Sawyer said present day criticism of the olden day lumber barons is unjust—they only lacked vision, and declared that the lumbermen of today will be just as severely criticized by following generations as are the "pine men" of yesterday by the present generation.

He said that this came because the pine timber was apparently inexhaustible. Its lumbering started in Maine and worked westward into Michigan, then Wisconsin and finally Minnesota. Even with the prairie country to their west the lumbermen could see no end. Forest fires were left to burn themselves out because there was no adequate means of coping with them and because it was believed that the timber being consumed was of no value.

When white pine started to become scarce, Norway pine was logged. Then the spruce and hemlock was cut and then hardwood began to be utilized, first for charcoal and later as chemical wood. Pulp wood began to supply the paper industry and today almost every kind of wood is usable.

Later veneer mills provided an outlet for hardwoods and still later the box factories took a wood not marketable earlier.

Selective logging does not meet with the approval of Mr. Sawyer for he contends it is hard to improve on nature and it is difficult to temper with its laws without paying for it eventually.

Lions And Students Clash In Soft Ball

Kinks and sore spots from last week's game have been ironed out, so the Lions are seeking additional honors tonight when they tackle the industrial arts department of Gladstone high school in a soft ball game at the park diamond.

Vince Johnson reports that the service club team will use its usual defense against the students. This consists of having shiny bald heads in the outfield, at second and at home plate, sunlight reflecting off the gleaming plates so blinds and confuses the opposition that they ordinarily fan out.

Of course, if its cloudy the Lions will just have to turn on the steam and use the Rockne theory that the best defense is a good offense. This however entails much work of strenuous nature and isn't to be resorted to unless necessary.

Newberry

Newberry—Following is the list of the thirty five seniors of Newberry high school, the smallest class in a great many years.

Howard landed on Guadal-canal with the Air Force about a month after the Americans had gained a beachhead on the island. After his farlough, Howard will be sent for reassignment to an eastern state.

Captain Mattson Is Back In U. S. After Italian Invasion

A combat engineer captain who made the landings at Arzew, North Africa, and Gela, Sicily, right behind the assaulting infantrymen has returned to this country from the Mediterranean theater.

The return of Capt. Kurt R. Mattson, 603 Michigan avenue, Manistique, Mich., under the army's rotation plan was announced by the War Department.

Capt. Mattson was a member of the first shore engineers regiment, organized in June, 1942, and went overseas the following month. The shore engineers go in on an invasion with the first few waves, marking the beach for following equipment, removing mines and marking roads.

Engineers coming in with the following waves bring in steel matting for road building, bulldozers, ammunition, food and water. Their weapons section sets up its own defense and they take charge of the beach, allowing the infantrymen to push inland without worry about their supplies on the beach.

As soon as the bulldozers reach shore, road building begins. The pioneer platoons build roads and set up dumps for supplies. If the invasion doesn't come off as rapidly as planned, the engineers join the fire fight as infantrymen.

Capt. Mattson said he believed that the bulldozer operator has the most dangerous job on the beach during the early days of an invasion. "Over the noise of his motor he never hears a shell coming. Therefore, he's unable to take cover when the other men do," he said.

GORSICA BEATS SENATORS, 2-1

Dutch Leonard Knocked Out Of Box In Bout Of Unearned Runs

BY WATSON SPOELSTRA
Detroit, May 29 (AP)—Johnny Gorsica overcame five errors to a five-hit pitching performance today to give the Detroit Tigers a 2 to 1 victory over the Washington Senators in a battle of unearned runs that knocked Emil (Dutch) Leonard out of the American League pitching lead.

With the tying run on third base with one out in the ninth inning, Gorsica held off the Senators to complete a magnificent performance for his fourth victory against three defeats. The Tigers thus took the series, two games to one, and gained their sixth victory in seven starts against Washington.

The only run off Gorsica came with two out in the seventh when Joe Orenko booted Stan Spence's roller and Chuck Hostetler muffed Bill Lefebvre's fly in right field, Spence scoring on the error.

The Tigers got that back in their half on the first of two unearned runs off Leonard, who won his first four games. Eddie Mayo opened with a single to right and advanced two bases when Johnny Sullivan let Rudy York's double play grounder trickle through his legs.

Three Double Plays
Detroit got the winning run in the eighth. With two out, Charley Metro, replacing Roger Cramer in center field, singled to right. On the hit and run play, Mayo poked the ball through the vacated shortstop position and Metro streaked for third. George Case's throw sailed under Metro, sliding into third, and rolled near the Tiger disout for an error. Metro racing home. After York walked, Higgins rolled out.

Jake Powell was safe on York's error to open the Washington ninth. He was replaced by Pinch Runner Fernin Guerra who took second on a bunt, sending Guerra back to third, but York's throw on Lefebvre's grounder nailed Guerra at the plate. Gorsica fanned Pinch Hitter Hills Layne for the second out, but the bases became loaded when Higgins booted Rick Ferrell's bouncer. However, Johnny Sullivan flied out to end the game.

Partly to atone for their defensive lapses, the Tigers made three double plays to boost their league leading total to 56.

Paul Trout and Hal Newhouse will face the New York Yankees tomorrow in a holiday double-header expected to draw 35,000 fans.

YANK JINX CHASED
St. Louis, May 29 (AP)—Bob Muncie routed an old Yankee jinx that has cost him six straight ball games since 1941 by scattering 10 hits for his first victory over the world champs, 11-3, today as the St. Louis Browns moved back into second place.

Home runs by George McQuinn with a man on in the first and Gene Moore with two on in the third routed Atley Donald, Joe McCarthy's starter. The New Yorkers, who had beaten St. Louis five out of six previous starts, never caught up as the Browns battered three hurlers for 13 safeties.

Milly Byrnes paced the St. Louis attack with two doubles and a single and scored three of the runs off Donald. Em Roser and Johnny Johnson, Donald, who had beaten St. Louis nine out of 10 times before this season, suffered his second setback at their hands and his third loss of the campaign.

George Stinewiss was the only consistent Yankee hitter with three for five including a triple.

BOSTON SWEEPS SERIES
Chicago, May 29 (AP)—Tex Hughson, scattering eight singles, hung up his season's fifth victory tonight as the Boston Red Sox beat the White Sox, 3 to 1, before 14,528 to sweep the three-game series and make it seven out of seven over the Chicagoans this year.

Catcher Hal Wagner's double cashed singles by Manager Joe Cronin and Jim Tabor in the fourth inning to give his battery-mate all the margin he needed. Myrl Hoag's overthrow of third base on Tom McBride's single permitted George Metkovich to score the other run in the eighth inning, after Metkovich forced Hughson, who singled.

Boston got nine hits off Buck Ross.

ATHLETICS BUSCH TALLIES
Cleveland, May 29 (AP)—Four runs in each of the fourth and eighth innings with an added tally in between gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 9 to 4 triumph over the Cleveland Indians today before 2,000 fans.

Dick Siebert's home run set off the fourth inning, rally, which included a double by outfielder Estelle. The Athletics bunched their 12 safeties while the Indians were spreading their 14 hits throughout the game.

Four-buggers by Mickey Rocco, Jeff Heath and Roy Cullenbine couldn't save the game for the Tribe. Ray Poat was charged with the loss, and Jonas Berry received credit for the victory.

Dutch Leonard Knocked Out Of Box In Bout Of Unearned Runs

BY WATSON SPOELSTRA
Detroit, May 29 (AP)—Johnny Gorsica overcame five errors to a five-hit pitching performance today to give the Detroit Tigers a 2 to 1 victory over the Washington Senators in a battle of unearned runs that knocked Emil (Dutch) Leonard out of the American League pitching lead.

With the tying run on third base with one out in the ninth inning, Gorsica held off the Senators to complete a magnificent performance for his fourth victory against three defeats. The Tigers thus took the series, two games to one, and gained their sixth victory in seven starts against Washington.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Marie Kathryn, who was taken from our family circle one year ago today,
May 30, 1943.

A ray of sunshine
Has gone from our home.
And a place is vacant today.
And the little girl
That we loved so well
Seems so very far away.
But we're trying to live
Just day by day.
Trusting the Father for light—
Knowing that some day
She'll be with us again.
In the Home in the City of Light.

Sadly missed by her parents, brothers and sisters.
